RADIUS...high traffic features built-in

Modularity is just one of the features that is built into the Radius Lounge Series.

Many other features for the high traffic environment are automatically part of the specifications, such as:

...sweep-through area between all backs and seats

...seat and back independent for easy field replacement

...arms and tablets are field replacable and may be added after installation because all legs are pre-drilled

...upholstered frames are all pre-drilled to accept legs and interior tablets after installation

...frames are built for heavy-duty, high traffic environments

RADIUS...in a colorful children's clinic

The colorful and fluid design of this pediatric clinic was enhanced with the circular configurations of Radius units. As a crowning touch, HGA, the Architects and Engineers for this space, approached Davis on creating a small-scale circle that was more inviting to the children.

Pictured is the resulting design that is a two-piece unit, which allows the little ones to play and sit in their scaled environment.

RADIUS...following the curves

Curved seats are offered as inside or outside units in 90°, 45°, and 30° angles.

The different radius units allow for full circles at different diameters and contoured configurations used with straight units and tables.

RADIUS ...on the bench

Benches are beginning to be popular in the fast track lounge areas.

Radius offers two models that includes a single bench in one, two, and three seat units with a 90° curved for modular configurations.

The double bench has a flair for the dramatic with directional seating on both sides and an open sweep-through area.

It is offered in one, two, and three seat units with optional end tablets that are available in acrylic or veneer.
