

Tatiana,
we have corrected the misspelling you found on design. Also we replaced the Menu Item Name on your variant - which is good replacements. And we change the slogan at logo - in different way - so it's much more readable now.

Then I am thinking now about your comments on 3D picture on home page.

Your are suggesting - to show a custom build table(s) that will attract users by its aprirance - this is great! But you haven't mentioned what exactly we should be for such table: top style, legs, data grid etc...

So I am assuming this is up to us to think about these options.

And so we did.

We went through all your tables and lags and color options available on your website. We notice that the most expensive legs are not the most attractive ones. So we decided to choose a balanced option:

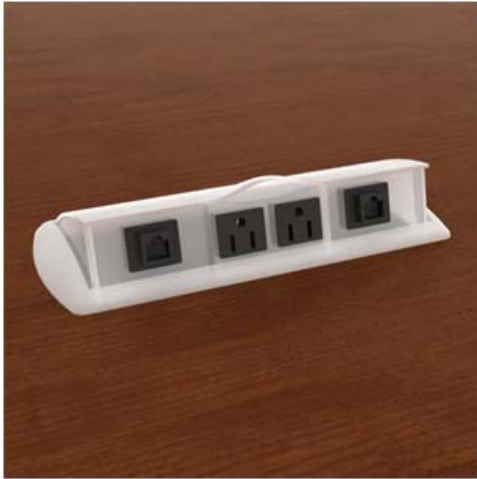

- nice looking shapes:

- not the cheapest variant - with good price;
- custom color (it can be any color but not black);
- custom edge and material of Top;

- we are implementing data grids and wire management;

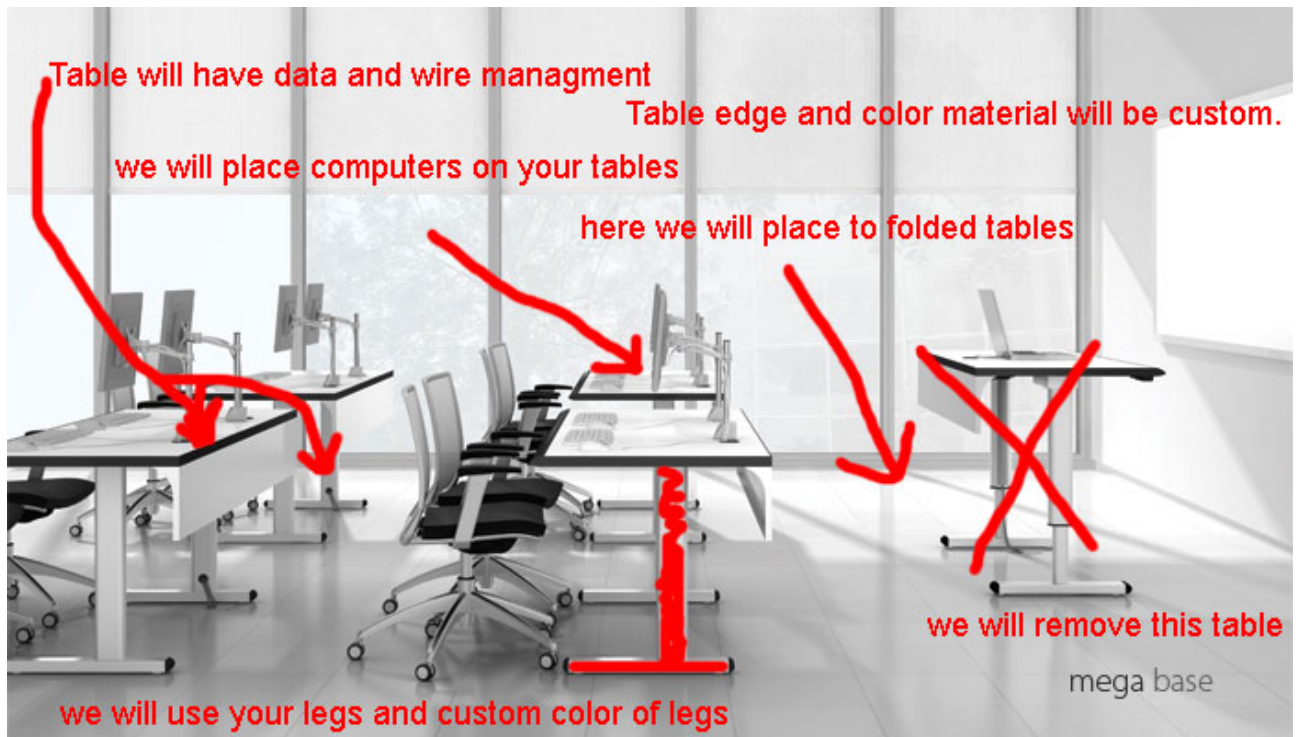

- we are using folding legs;
Similar to this picture:

- we will show this training table in situational environment (with computer installed, placed in rows, couple of table are being folded aside, etc)
the final variant will be similar to this picture:

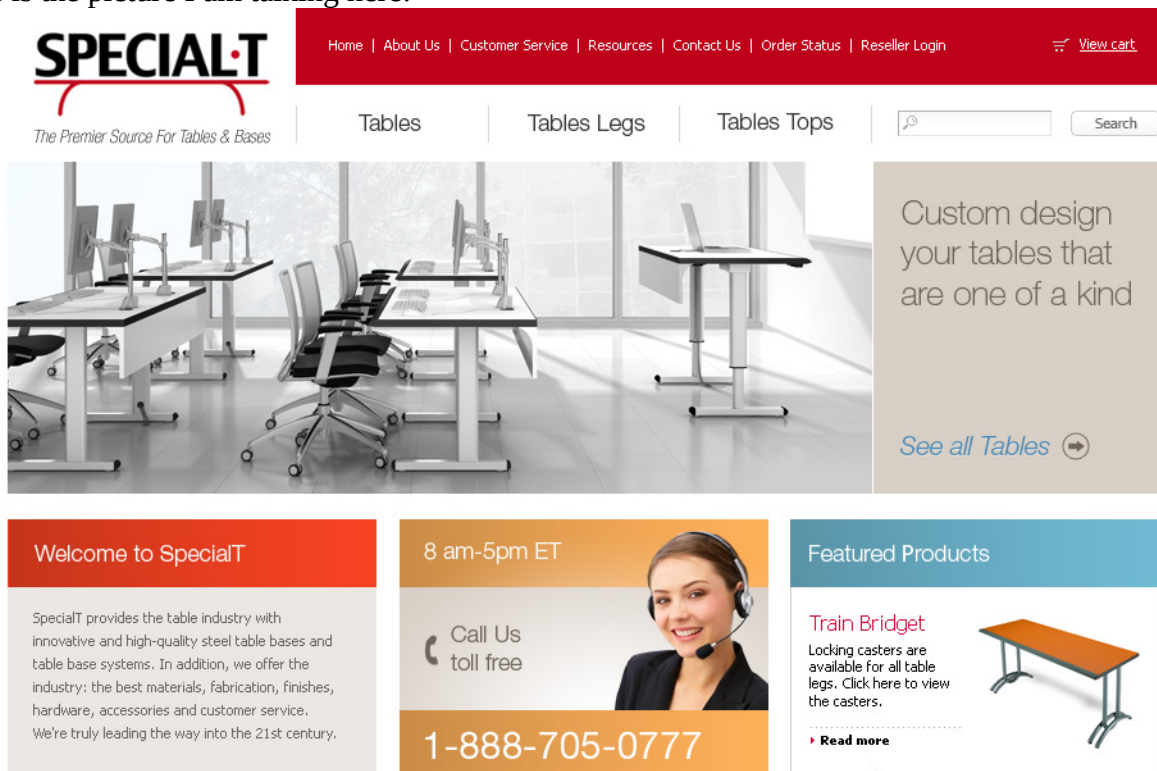

Please note that the colors of furniture will be different. Also there won't be a teacher's desk – instead of it there will be 2 folded tables – set next to the window.

Our purpose to have nice, attractive pictures that will be rotating on home page (note: this is not for being used for detailed product introduction).

While we are working on this picture - modeling, rendering, etc – please imagine this picture on your website.

Here is the picture I am talking here:

It looks nice, clean and professional. Plus it shows most of featured applied on each of the tables used.

Also we show couple other screenshots of your website with different main picture. These pictures we have taken from your competitor's website. IF you think that one of these offered pictures will be very good for your website – let us know – we will work on that variant and will created similar picture with your tables and the picture will belong to you (all right will be yours)
