Most Modest

A South San Francisco based design studio, specializing in craft inspired products and technology goods.

“Design should create transformative experiences that people remember” notes founder Justin Champaign, who believes intelligent products should offer a deeper level of engagement and connection with the user, the object, and their environment.

Justin and Ben pull from a deep interest in behavior, knowledge of new technology, and a passion for making things to create solutions that bring us closer to each other and our physical environment.

Fundamental to their process is the idea that the journey defines the destination. Through extensive research, sketching, and rapid prototyping, they test and validate every potential solution to ensure an incredible result. Their background in product design, engineering and branding has taught them that innovation comes through immersive experiences and vibrant collaborations.
