MILLELEGGNI PORCELAIN

Millelegni Ash Grey Shown

Scottish Oak. White Toulipier. Ash Grey. The world is rich with a diversity of wood species, but only a handful are well known. Remote habitats shelter rare and exotic woods, many of them beautiful but unsuitable for use in construction. MILLELEGGNI, a new collection from Artistic Tile, captures the essence of these rare woods in porcelain, bringing their exotic beauty into a durable, high-utility format. A variety of tile sizes makes the MILLELEGGNI collection versatile, giving the designer or savvy homeowner a broad palette of options in creating a naturally beautiful space.

ARTISTIC TILE

MILLELEGGNI PORCELAIN

The MILLELEGGNI Porcelain Collection features four types of wood, from different regions of the world, their patterning and surfaces flawlessly.

White Toulipier

Named for its tulip-like flowers, this Canadian wood is portrayed in white to underline all the subtlety of the original vein patterns.

Ash Grey

These planks with their polished, iridescent, almost silvery look come from Japanese trees which may be up to 40 metres tall.

Scottish Oak

From Scottish old oak casks used to age the finest scotch whiskies, a faithful reproduction of the colors and shades brought out in the wood by long exposure to the spirit.

Noce Selvatico

Found in Italy, this wild tree features intense, variegated coloring in a range of warm hues.
