Frames, Seats & Backs

Cym frames are constructed from steel, then powder coated, and include integrated nylon glides. Powder coated frames are extremely durable and offer an extended product service life, as well as being environmentally friendly.

Seats and backs are produced using glass reinforced polypropylene for durability. Upholstered seats and/or backs incorporate high-density polyurethane foam.

planes & angles

Architectural references are evident in the design which includes clean, angular planes and sweeping curves. And while the form may be contemporary, Cym seating is at home in any setting.

integrated arms

Ergonomically arching arms are created by extending the front legs into a curve that attaches to the back of the frame. The compound curve gently begins to open at the seat for a wider and more comfortable seating experience.

Upholstered seats are complemented by the crisp, smooth miter joints of the frame. Padded seats roll over the lip for comfort, while at the same time maintaining a low profile for stacking. Upholstered seats are protected by standard stacking bumpers when stacked.
